OFFSET LOOSE COVER
Designed by Norm Architects

Offset is the result of research into ‘balance’ by Norm Architects. The studio wanted to create a sofa as simply as possible while embracing a set of paradoxes: making it substantial yet delicate in appearance, architectural yet inviting and homey.

The Offset Loose Cover introduces increased longevity, functionality and versatility to the collection, with a removable and washable exterior crafted from a custommade cotton and linen blend textile in three timeless colours. The soft and easy to clean cover creates a relaxed silhouette for the Offset, imbuing spaces with a sense of casual elegance.

By creating a removable cover for the Offset, it is possible to retain the body whilst simply replacing the cover—extending the product’s lifespan and reducing the instance of waste. In this way, the Offset Loose Cover can also adapt to evolving lifestyles, design and colour preferences to be cherished for generations.

The frame of the Offset sofa is constructed from wood and the back and side cushions are made from a double foam core encased in a feather down and foam blend for superior comfort and durability. The loose cover is secured to the sofa and armrests in one streamlined piece, with a concealed Velcro strip allowing for convenient removal.

About the Designer

Norm Architects was founded in 2008 by Kasper Rønn and Jonas Bjerre-Poulsen, later joined by Linda Korndal. Based in the heart of Copenhagen, the award-winning studio works in the fields of industrial design, residential architecture, commercial interiors, photography and art direction. Located on one of the city’s oldest streets, the practice takes pride in respecting its context, building on the traditions of Scandinavian design, of timeless aesthetics and natural materials
