VILHELM SOFA
Designed by Flemming Lassen

With its low, rounded profile, generous padding and sumptuous upholstery detailed with buttons, the Vilhelm Sofa is a paradigm of comfort. The three-seater design was created by Flemming Lassen in 1935 and takes its name from the designer's father. Looking to the mid-century movement for its design cues, it offers functional comfort, considered craft and a beautiful form. Ahead of its time when first launched, today it enjoys cult status as an icon of the Danish Modern design movement.

Reintroduced in 2019 and updated to modern needs, Vilhelm's high back and armrests offer privacy, while its exaggerated seat cushion provides lush comfort enhanced by sheepskin upholstery. Strong in both craft and presence, it balances the minimalist with the voluminous and was originally intended to stand away from a wall. Easily seating three people, but with room for more, it invites life as much as it does rest.

About the designer

Credited for his role in bringing functionalism to Denmark, Flemming Lassen (1902–1984) was an architect and designer noted for his exacting craftsmanship and naïve expression. Lassen drew much of his inspiration from the architect Mies van der Rohe and the tenets of the Bauhaus artistic movement—a less is more approach focused on form, function and novel materials counterbalanced with human needs. His original and distinctive designs with timeless silhouettes still resonate today.
